God is displayed here in such a manner as to cause the hardest heart to admit that Jesus can save. All phases of hu-man life and experience are heard in the testimonies. Time nor space will not permit to speak of the missionary influence that has gone out from this grand opinion as to its success and the desira-work, or of the converts, who, being bility of providing the necessary space saved themselved, are engaged in win-ning souls for the Master in their various fields of labor. The necessity of Rescue Missions is being demonstrated more and more each year. The number of young men coming to the cities and large towns from the country, the saloons with ennes and crime by these agencies, make the rescue work a necessity. This work could not be done in a church, we can introduce them to the church and Sabbath School or be a recruiting station for the church. Most of our conwerts do join some Evangelical Church. York Rescue Mission Worker. He spoke We take a man up who is discouraged, all hope gone, perhaps almost dying from drink and its results, keep him off the street, feed him, clothe and give him we have done what we could and the year there were 196 inquirers and 95 professed conversion.

Our reading room, provided with daily and weekly papers and periodicals, religious and secular, is open every weekday and is largely taken advantage of by working men in their unemployed hours. attended. In the new building it is proposed to add a reading room for girls over 15. The attendance at the reading room last year was 6,188, the largest in its history, the increase being 32 per cent, over the largest previous year. The committee renews its thanks to the publishers of the various city papers for supplying the rooms with their papers gratis.

In November last an addition was made to the second story of the building which provided a kitchen, janitor's room and a layer demander of and a large dormitory (the expense of which was borne chiefly by members of the Mission Committee.) This addition made possible the establishment of a woodyard on a small scale, a friend paid the expense of a shed in the rear of the building and furnished enough wood to commence the experiment with. It proved successful far beyond our anticipation. Able-bodied men out of work were enabled to earn temporary relief and thus preserve their independence. In every case men received full value for their labor; homeless men being paid in meals and lodging. Those having families, in cash or orders on their own grocers, as the superintendent deemed wisest. In the two months of its existence 274 lodgings and 805 meals were earned by homeless men and $61.39 was paid in wages to unemployed residents of the town. The fire brought this part of our work abruptly to a close, but the experiment proved the wood yard to be self-supporting, also a great advance on the ordinary forms of relief. Since the fire the meals and lodgings have been earned, finishing work in the yard or in partially taking down the old building. During the year 191 free and 396 earned lodgings were furnished, as were 79 free and 1,974 earned meals. Clothing was furnished to 116, permanent employment found for 13. The committee extend thanks to Mr. Wm. Cooper and the N. Y. and N. J. Telephone Company for the free use of their house on Bank street. during the months of February and

Both fountains, one on Speedwell ave, and one at the Mission, were in operation during the summer months. The ice for the Market street fountain was donated by the Shelley Hygenic Ice Co., and that for the other by the gentleman who originally presented the fountain.

The past year has been exceptional in many ways in the history of this work.

For some years the Mission has needed more room, the work has grown far beyond the greatest expectations, some years ago it was necessary to have more room and the present ruined building was secured and was but recently enlarged at the expense of several hundred dollars, and now the destruction of the building by fire renders a new one absolutely ne-cessary. It has been decided to erect a plain brick building, the size will be determined by the amount of money raised. It is intended that the basement shall be used as a woodyard, the first floor as reading room, office and meeting room; second floor for mother's meetings, dormitory and janitor's rooms. The work done is undenominational and the comdone is undenominational and the committee not only appeals to this church but the community at large for help in the erection of the new building. The remains of the old building are being removed, we are anxious to lay the foundation of the new, we are waiting for the necessary amount to be subscribed, will you help us, will you subscribe to-day? We are under heavy expense to carry on the work at present, having not only rent to pay but the interest on a mortgage of $4,100 besides. Our aim is to raise enough money to pay off the mortgage, enough money to pay off the mortgage, buy additional land for our increasing work and erect a plain building suitable to carry on the work. We place in your hands the life-line, will you throw it out to the perishing? If you cannot do all your generous heart would prompt, will you not do at least the little you can?

Do not refrain from giving because you Do not refrain from giving because you cannot give a large sum, the quarter, the dime and the nickel all count. If you can give more we shall be deeply grate-ful. If not, God will measure the gift by your spirit rather than by the amount. We appreciate the help that has been given us, and extend our most hearty thanks to all who have given toward the support of the Mission in money and gifts.

Thomas B. Ironside, who has been the Superintendent of the Mission for the ast eight years, coming to Morristown in 1890, from Washington D. C., where he was connected with and had been active in the work of the Central Union Mission, then spoke. He began by speaking of the various new branches of work undertaken last year including the gospel wagon, stereopticon meetings, and the wood yard. He gave some very interesting instances of conversions aght about by these new departures and he also told of some remarkable conversions occurring in the ordinary course of the work. The variety the incidents showed what a wide field the mission covers and how many different classes it reaches, from the lowest tramp to the respectable

The miraculous power of homeless and those temporarily out of homeless and those temporarily out of work. He was glad the fire did not occur sooner, for then it would have been hard to prove to the satisfaction of conservative people that such a work could be successful, and now there is but one bility of providing the necessary space for it. In closing Mr. Ironside referred FIRST-CLASS RESTAURANT to the proposed plans for the new building, and showed that every inch of space that is proposed to provide is absolutely necessary to the successful conducting of the work.
